Dr. Ivana Ivanić

University of Novi Sad (Serbia)

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Ivana Ivanić is a faculty member at the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Novi Sad, specializing in Romanian Studies, Balkanology, Aromanian Studies, and Digital Humanities, with a strong focus on the integration of minority languages and new technologies in education. She is widely recognized as one of the leading experts in Serbia in the field of Romanian as a foreign language, with extensive experience in curriculum design, methodology, and teacher training. Since completing her academic studies in 2010, she has developed a dynamic academic career at the intersection of language, culture, and emerging technologies. Her primary research interests include the Aromanian community in Serbia and the Balkans, Romanian and Balkan cultural studies, and the teaching of Romanian as a foreign language in bilingual and multilingual contexts. Dr. Ivanić has led six interdisciplinary research projects as principal investigator, dedicated to Romanian and Aromanian studies, Balkanology, and the application of digital technologies in education. She is the author of six monographs, nine dictionaries (including one multilingual dictionary), and more than ten edited volumes of scholarly papers, and has published over 70 scientific articles indexed in international databases. Her teaching portfolio spans undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral-level courses, including Romanian Language, History of the Romanian Language, Balkanology, Romanian as a Foreign Language, and specialized doctoral courses in Digital Humanities. She is particularly engaged in the development of innovative, AI-supported, and interactive digital resources for language learning, with special attention to less commonly taught and minority languages. Early in her career, Dr. Ivanić gained valuable ethnolinguistic fieldwork experience through a Eurodyssée grant in Romania and later collaborated with the Pedagogical Institute of Vojvodina on curriculum development for national minorities. Since 2012, she has been a key contributor to the Faculty of Philosophy, combining academic research, teaching, institutional leadership, and intercultural engagement. She currently serves as Vice-Dean for Accreditation, Self-Evaluation, and Quality Assurance at the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Novi Sad, where she coordinates accreditation procedures, evaluation processes, and quality assurance mechanisms. A polyglot fluent in seven languages, Dr. Ivanić actively participates in international academic networks and interdisciplinary collaborations across Southeast Europe and beyond. Her academic contributions have been recognized with numerous awards, including the Dositej Award for Academic Excellence and Educational Contributions from the Republic of Serbia, and the Cultural Medal for Multiculturalism and Intercultural Dialogue awarded by the Cultural Center of Vojvodina. Through her interdisciplinary and intercultural initiatives, she plays a significant role in advancing Romanian studies, Balkan research, digital humanities, and contemporary language education in Southeast Europe.
